The building was valued at $30,000. It was fitted with improved machinery, valued at $60,000. Besides these 2,000 bushels of wheat, some car loads of corn, and vast amounts of meal, flour, shorts, bran, etc., were destroyed. The Colonel also lost 40 head of fine horses, which he kept in a pen in the rear of the mill.—Columbus Enquirer.

A few Sundays ago several "court" belles, queens and fond of the "Boston," were upset by the sexton dancing that mazy measure with their equally impious beaux in the vestibule of a fashionable Washington church to the tune of "Come, Ye Disconsolate," which was being sung at the time by the choir.

Lucy Stone, president of the Woman's Suffrage Association, recently addressed a communication to the Speaker of the Kentucky House of Representatives, enclosing a memorial of the association, which she asked might be presented to that body, expressing at the same time her belief that Kentucky would trust the subject "with chivalrous courtesy and enlightened liberality." The next report of the House thus acknowledged the receipt of the document:

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE—A COMMUNICATION from GENERAL LUCY STONE.—"The Speaker laid before the House the following communication from Mrs. Major General Lucy Stone, the Head-Centre and High-Cockalorum and Jerrycobniter of the Woman's Suffrage and Free Love International Association, and ex-U. About a Few Croakers, Grumblers and Soreheads.

We hear that these gentry, though few in number, are quite busy in certain portions of the State, taking as their texts certain acts of the legislative and executive departments of our State government. Some of them are constitutionally incapacitated from being pleased with anybody or anything, some are mischief makers, and others are set on and encouraged by shrewd politicians who hope to push their personal fortunes by getting up a row in the Democratic household. They all are working to the same end, though, perhaps, not designedly, viz.: To discredit and weaken the present State executive and to bring odium upon the present Legislature.

Now while we cannot and do not object to fair criticism and honest comment upon Governor Smith's administration and action of the Legislature, we respectfully submit that both deserve justice, at least, from men professing to be Democrats. Whatever the motives or provocations, if you please, they should never lose sight of this. It is neither honorable, nor manly, nor in good taste for Democrats to be going about stabbing the administration of their choice with querulous grumbling and sneering criticism, because, forsooth, they or their friends have not had things exactly as they desired. Such unseemly attacks sooner or latter recoil upon the heads of the assailants, themselves, for the mass of the people who care very little for private or personal grievances, soon detect the animus of these attacks and judge them as they deserve to be judged. We repeat that these assailants are few in number, but there should be none at all upon such unstable, selfish ground as they occupy. If the present administration should show the slightest inclination to forget the principles upon which it was entrusted with power by the people, or to ignore or refuse to execute the work it was called to do, then it should be instantly and effectively assailed, and no voice would be louder or more earnest than ours. If it still refused, after hearing the popular warning to heed it, then, of course, no alternative would be left but to drive it from power as soon as possible.

But we have no evidence at all that the present administration has or will likely do any of these things. Nay, we have the most conclusive proof that it is earnestly bent upon fulfilling every pledge made to the people, and carrying out to the letter every principle and purpose of the party and popular sentiment that put it in power.

It was elected—and when we use the word administration in this connection, we mean to include, not only the executive but the legislative department—to reform abuses, to stop the plunder of the public treasury by the native and imported rogues who had fastened themselves upon the people, to reduce public expenditures, make economy its motto, to find out what the State legally owed and provide for its payment, and last, but not least, to punish all the thieves it could capture. Amid many discouragements, and against obstacles that should not have been placed in the way by any friends of the State, at least all these results have been steadily pursued. The Governor and Legislature have done their whole duty in this direction. They have not respected persons, nor listened to apologetic suggestions and remonstrances from the tender-hearted, or possibly, too interested friends of practices and persons inimical to the results aimed at. They have pursued their investigations with zeal, fidelity, patience and justice, and unearthed many dark secrets and much valuable information, all of which the public will know in due time. They have stopped many leaks in the strong box, and driven many rogues to honest labor or into exile to escape the penitentiary. They have reduced expenditures in every possible way, and will continue to do so.

In short, they have done their duty well and faithfully, as we are given to see it, and so we believe the people think. The grumblers may rage and the croakers and soreheads imagine vain things, but the people will award honor and praise where it is justly due. They know when their servants do their duty, and they generally so declare when their verdict is demanded.—Macon Telegraph.

SUBSCRIBE TO THE CONSTITUTION.—A full report of the decisions of the Supreme Court is furnished to THE CONSTITUTION exclusively, by the Reporter of the Court.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.—We do not read anonymous letters and communications. The name and address of the writer are indispensable. Rejected communications we cannot undertake either to return or preserve.

☞ Stokes unknowingly bought one of Fisk's canary birds, and has it singing in his cell.

☞ The South, of New York, announces that Mrs. Carleton Belt, formerly of Georgia, has accepted the general and traveling agency of the Confederate Monumental Association.

☞ The Missouri Senate has passed a resolution unanimously, that it is inexpedient and unconstitutional for the State to loan its credit in aid of railroads or other corporations.

☞ On the 9th Jacksonville, Fla., had a tornado or hurricane, or something of that sort. It demolished lots of houses, killed a number of people, shivered carts to pieces, tore up pine trees by the roots, whirled off fencing, and cut up other destructive didoes.

Henry Clews.

Henry Clews has attacked Colonel Avery, the editor of THE CONSTITUTION, and impugned his veracity. Colonel Avery proves indisputably in reply that Clews is worse than his worst enemy ever thought him.—Columbus Sun.

☞ At the last Brooklyn election there were 6,977 fraudulent votes, of which the large majority were Radical.

If the Democracy thinks to be able to outcheat the Radical party, she may just as well hang up her fiddle at once. She can't do it Nobody can do it. It can't be done.

Courtship.

In a breach of promise case in London the definition of the word "courtship" has been legally decided. A married lady witness testified that "courtship" was, "Looking at each other, taking hold of each other's hands and all that kind of thing."

That's it. All that kind of thing. This expresses the operation exactly.

Grant Jobbing.

In the three years of Andy Johnson's rule, public buildings cost $1,859,412. In three years of Grant's sway, they cost $7,613,207, or over four times as much. This does not include the huge item of $6,500,000 called for the purpose this year.

If Grant has failed to out squander every previous President in a single term, it is unknown.

Huge Lemons from Florida.

Mr. S. E. Crittenden, of the Kimball House, has shown us some of the lemons that he brought from Florida. They grew near Palatka, and are absolute sockdolagers, some as large as squashes and as good as big These are among the trophies that the excursionists will get.

Mr. Crittenden has put a few of these lemons on exhibition in his office.

☞ Henry Clews & Co. are in much trouble from their manipulation of Georgia Bonds—so-called. They will probably learn at no distant period that there may be a practical difference between genuine and spurious evidences of a State's obligation. Also, that the credit of Georgia cannot be injured by her refusal to pay bonds issued without the sanction of proper authority. They need not fear the loss of any claims against the State which are legitimate. All these will be duly honored—none others should be.—Newnan Defender.

Croaking Against the State Administration.

We give in another part of the paper a very excellent article from the Macon Telegraph and Messenger, discussing the Democratic grumblers against the Democratic State Administration. The grumbling is of small extent, as far as our observation goes. It is vigorous, however, in its narrow channel.

This sort of thing may be expected, and should not be too seriously regarded by those animadverted upon. Sore-headed aspirants for office are the prime croakers. Perhaps an old personal grudge may prompt some of it.

The matter will soon settle, however. The people soon rightly appreciate such attacks, and value them at their real worth. We have a good Democratic administration, and that fact will glow the brighter from trial.

From the Telegraph and Messenger.

Honorable Thomas Hardeman.

Among the list of prominent Georgians who have recently been relieved of their political disabilities, we notice, with undisguised pleasure, the distinguished gentleman whose name forms the caption of this article. * *

Macon has reason to be proud of citizen Hardeman. A member of our merchant guild, in no manner connected with politics or professional life, by the mere force of his abilities and probity, he is confessedly a power in the land. What agricultural gathering or intellectual feast is complete without his presence and the soul stirring strains of his eloquence? Mr. Hardeman is a natural orator. Possessed of a fervid imagination, much humor and great fluency, few are his equals in addressing popular assemblages.

We rejoice that he has been restored to the rights of citizenship, and we doubt not that an appreciative public will advance him to those positions of trust which are the just mede of his talents and integrity.

The Georgia State Dental Association

This body meets in Atlanta on the first Wednesday in April. Composed as it is of some of the best citizens and most scientific men in Georgia, it will be an assemblage of worth and intelligence, and we trust that our citizens will show them courteous attention

The progress that has been made in the important and practical science of denistry has been great, and this Association is composed of the leading men of the business, who are seeking by co-operation to advance its interest, dignity, purity and scientific development.

Mr. S. E. Crittenden, the liberal proprietor of the Kimball House, has placed at the use of the Association for holding their meetings the large comfortable public hall of his hotel.

Would it not be well for our citizens to get up an appropriate entertainment for these gentlemen, and pay them the courtesy for which Atlanta is noted in attention to those who favor us by their presence?

The West Point and Elyton Narrow Gauge Railway.

In a former number we gave the names of the Directors of this road, and officers elect.

This is an important line to Atlanta and Atlanta merchants. Starting from West Point, on the Alabama line, and taking nearly a west course, it will pierce the counties of Chambers, Tallapoosa, Clay, Talladega, Shelby and Jefferson.

The following figures, collated from the United States census report of 1860, shows the amount of their products, and the large new trade that the construction of this line will open to Atlanta and her enterprising business men.

COUNTIES IN ALABAMA ON AND CONTIGUOUS TO THE WEST POINT AND ELYTON NARROW GAUGE RAILWAY.

Counties—Chambers, Tallapoosa, Talladega, Shelby, Jefferson, Randolph, Coosa, St. Clair; population, 109,646; farms, acres improved, 588,218; farms, acres unimproved, 1,140,814; cash value of farms, $7,931,033; head horses and mules, 28,030; head cattle, 105,997; head sheep, 61,103; head swine, 277,426; value live stock, $3,561,242; bushels wheat, 84,678; bushels corn, 3,803,581; bales cotton, 47,672; pounds wool, 105,750; bushels peas, 125,628; pounds honey, 218,012; pounds butter, 817,040; bushels sweet potatoes, 721,553.

The trade of these counties has heretofore, to a great extent, centered at West Point and LaGrange, hence these places, the Atlanta and West Point Railroad, Atlanta, and the Georgia Railroad, have received the benefits therefrom.

Last season, West Point received over 18,000 bales of cotton, the bulk of which was sold in that market. The larger sale of goods to supply the farmers and planters who produced these 18,000 bales gives to West Point an amount of business rarely equaled by a city of two thousand inhabitants.

It needs no argument to our readers to convince them of the importance of this large trade to Atlanta, to the Atlanta and West Point, and Georgia Railroads.

Admitting its importance, let us see whether with the railways now being constructed in Alabama, we can reasonably expect to retain this large trade, or whether the construction of the railways referred to will not deprive us of it.

The East Alabama and Cincinnati Railway, Eufaula to Guntersville, via Opelika, Lafayette, Jacksonville and Gadsden, is completed from Opelika to a point four miles north of Lafayette, and is being vigorously pushed from that point by a company of Georgia contractors. This line passes centrally through Chambers, through Randolph, Clay, Cleburn and Calhoun counties to Jacksonville, and thence through Etowah and Marshall counties to Guntersville.

The Savannah and Memphis Railway, Opelika to Chickasaw, at the foot of the Muscle Shoals on the Tennessee river, will pass through the counties of Tallapoosa, Coosa, Talladega, Shelby, Jefferson, Walker, Winton, Marion, and Franklin. These counties, comprising the second and third tiers west of those penetrated by the East Alabama and Cincinnati Road, will be absorbed by the Savannah and Memphis, thus depriving us of the entire trade of East Alabama, diverting it to Opelika, Columbus and Savannah.

The counties of Chambers, Randolph and Tallapoosa, with their 26,017 bales cotton, their 56,293 bushels, of wheat their 1,657,491 bushels corn, and other agricultural products, or in other words, the surplus products of these immensely productive countries, will be lost to West Point, the Atlanta and West Point Railway, Atlanta and the Georgia Railway, by the completion of the East Alabama and Cincinnati Road.

Here, then, we see at a glance the importance of the West Point and Elyton Railway to Atlanta and the two roads named, especially as its construction will not only retain this trade, but bring us a large new business.

The distance from West Point to Elyton is about 110 miles, while from Atlanta via the Georgia Western, it will be about 160 miles, a difference in construction of 50 miles of road through a rough country, in favor of the West Point route.

It is proposed that the West Point and Elyton Road strike the line of the Savannah and Memphis about 40 miles west of West Point, using a common line from that point to Elyton, in which case we would have only 40 miles to build outright, and 70 miles in conjunction with the Savannah and Memphis.

To complete the Georgia Western to Elyton as an independent line we have 160 miles to build at a cost of $25,000 per mile or a total of $4,000,000.

By the West Point line 75 miles to build at a total cost of about $1,875,000, or if built narrow gauge at a cost of $12,000 per mile equipped, a total cost of $900,000.

LIGHT MELANGE.

I.

THE GRAND GRASP OF GERMAN GENIUS.

The ever-present consciousness of unsatisfied aspiration, that shoots toward the skies in the pinnacles of the Gothic cathedral, also throbs in the poetry of Goethe and Schiller, and writhes in the tangled speculations of the German philosophers, till one is reminded of the agonized struggles of some wounded animal; its deep minor tones wail through the harmonies of Beethoven, Mendelssohn, and Schumann; we feel it in the mighty swing of Milton's epic tread through the realms given for him alone to explore; it unveils itself with the most pathetic sadness midst the brightest turmoil, the very heydey of Shakspear's "myriad minded" thoughts; it casts "luminous shadow" over the greatest of our modern poets, Byron, Shelley, Wordsworth, Coleridge, Browning, and Tennyson.

II.

THE BIZARRE CAPRICE OF FRENCH BAL D'OPERA.

A favorite costume was one compromising between the symbolism of mourning and the fact of shamelessness. Imagine a black pair of stays, rounded off by short, tightly-fitting black silk bathing-drawers, covered with jet beads. And to this single garment a cap and boots of the same color, and imagine the limbs to be encased in slate-colored tights, and a plume trailing from the hair, and you have a very fair idea of the popular I em dress of Saturday's bal d'opera.

III.

A FRENCH CRITIQUE ON SHAKESPEARE.

An extraordinary species of mind, perplexing to all the French modes of analysis and reasoning, all-powerful, excessive, equally master of the sublime and the base; the most creative that ever engaged in the exact copy of the details of actual existence, in the dazzling caprice of fancy, in the profound complication of superhuman passions; a nature, poetical, immoral, inspired, superior to reason in the sudden revelation of his seer's madness; so extreme in joy and pain, so abrupt of gait, so stormy and impetuous in his transports, that this great age alone could have cradled such a child.

IV.

MURAT, NAPOLEON'S DASHING CAVALRY CHIEF.

Tall and masculine in person; his features well formed, but expressing only good nature and rude energy; his black hair flowing in curls over his shoulders; his hat gorgeous with his plumes; his whole air carrying an air of masquerade—this was the general appearance of the man, well picturing Napoleon's ardent chief of cavalry. Amid the luxurious life of Naples, his feelings and conversations often reverted to the time when he was lotly engaged with Cossack bands on the plains of Russia and Poland. I have seen him dressed as a Cossack chief at a court masquerade, and parading the streets with a long suite of his old companions-in-war in similar costumes. He was endowed with a large amount of purely physical vitality, which pleasurably expended itself in the active deeds of war, but found no sufficient vent in peace, even when called upon to act the king. With all his fantasies of dress there was a jovial kindness of temperament which made his presence agreeable to the public eye.

☞ They are building so many shoe shops in Haverhill, Massachusetts, that the people look for 3,000 increase in population by next year.

We take the above from THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION. Can the "gleaner" of that paper tell what's in a shoe shop to produce such an effect?—Early County News.

To our brother of the News we can only say that the above was republished as found in a Massachusetts exchange. Our people are so engaged in raising cotton that it would seem that we are ignorant of not only what is in shoe shops to produce a population, but also in the preparation of our fertilizers, the growing of our own hogs, horses and mules; the manufacture of our own tooth-picks, broom, axe, hoe and spade handles, carriages, wagons, hubs, spokes, corn, hay, doors, sash, blinds, hats, clothing, etc., etc. To raise, to make or manufacture these things in Georgia would have a tendency to increase her population and wealth. Haverhill was but an insignificant place in Massachusetts, but she built up a good shoe trade, and has not only kept but greatly increased her population. Bridgewater, Campello, Hudson, Marlboro, Woburn, Beverly, Westboro, Marblehead, have all grown to be thriving, populous towns in Massachusetts, and are increasing in wealth and population, and the "gleaner" of THE CONSTITUTION can only say to the News that doubtless much of their success in money and in increase of population is owing to the hundreds and thousands of dollars from the West and South that have found their way into the shoe shops of these places.

An Editor's Labor.

Mark Twain, in his recent book entitled "Roughing It," thus refers to the labors of editors in the matter of writing, to say nothing of the mountain load of other editorial duties which they are called on to perform daily:

Fancy how you would feel if you had to pump your brains dry every day in a week, fifty-two weeks in a year. It makes one low spirited simply to think of it. The matter that each editor of a daily paper in America writes in the course of a year would fill from four to eight bulky volumes like this book! Fancy what a library an editor's work would make after twenty or thirty years' services. Yet people often marvel that Dickens, Scott, Bulwer, Dumas, etc., have been able to produce so many books. If these authors had wrought as voluminously as newspaper editors do, the result would be something to marvel at, indeed.

How editors can continue this tremendous labor, this exhausting consumption of brain fibre (for their work is creative, and not a mere mechanical laying up of facts like reporting,) day after day and year after year, is incomprehensible. Preachers take two months holiday in midsummer, for they find that to produce two sermons a week is wearing in the long run. In truth it must be so, and is so; and, therefore, how an editor can take from ten to twenty texts and build upon them from ten to twenty painstaking, editorials a week, and keep up for all the year round, is further beyond comprehension than ever. Ever since I survived my week as editor, I have found at least one pleasure in any newspaper that comes to my hand; it is in admiring the long columns of editorials, and wondering to myself how in the mischief he did it.

Literary Notes.

The circulation of the London Daily Telegraph is 170,000.

The first newspaper issued was sent by Burleigh, then Prime Minister of Queen Elizabeth, in the year 1588.

August Blanche, whose novels the Putnams are soon to publish, is a great man in Sweden—statesman, philanthropist and social reformer, as well as writer.

Coe, Wetnerill & Co., from the 1st of January to the 15th of February, have records in their agency of the establishment of 125 new weeklies, 33 monthlies, and 12 dailies.

M. Hatin, the historian of the press in France, estimates the total number of newspapers in the world at 12,500, and the average number of sheets issued daily at 12,000,000.

The German poet, Grillparzer, is dead. He occupied a high place in the estimation of his countrymen, and for many years he had been the head of the Austrial school of imaginative literature.

Passing Events.

London has 423,849 paupers.

In 1825, Thiers was a printer's devil.

Fourteen horse railroads converge at the Fulton Ferry, Brooklyn.

The population of Boston, within a radius of six miles from the State House is 400,000.

Nearly two thousand people, men, women and children, are employed in the paper collar factories of Massachusetts.

California produced 6,000,000 gallons of wine and 200,000 gallons of brandy in 1871. The area in vineyard is about 40,000 acres.

When John Jacob Astor died, he left a little over $21,000,000. William B. Astor, his son, is now estimated to be worth nearly $50,000,000.

A legal regulation enforces the closing of the London theaters on Ash Wednesday. The music halls and low places of entertainment, meantime, remain open.

Personal.

The daughter of Mungo Park, the African traveler, is dead.

Madame Adelina Patti has closed her St. Petersburg engagement.

Ole Bull has purchased a "Brown Stone Front" in Franklin Square in Boston.

The second wife of ex-President Tyler is still a very beautiful woman and of youthful appearance.

Charles Reade subscribes for six American journals, which he says far exceed the English papers in point of news.

The fortune of Mr. A. T. Stewart, the great Irish-American merchant of New York, is estimated at between fifty and sixty millions.

Alabama News Items.

The Warrior river is in fine boating order.

Blue Eye, is the name of a town in Talladega county.

Aimee and her Opera Bouffe Company are taking Mobile by storm.

Hon. J. W. Clay, of Huntsville, was tried in Judge Busteed's court, a few days since, for contempt of court.

Mr. Shacklock, of Mobile, is the author of a book of poetry entitled: "The Circassian Slave, and other Poems," soon to be issued.

The people of Talladega county are agitating the question of a narrow guage railroad from Montgomery to Talladega. It will take $850,000 to complete the road.

DRUNKENNESS IN FRANCE.—Drunkenness has increased to such an extent throughout France of late, that the government has found it necessary to give it attention. The National Assembly has taken the matter in hand, and there is little doubt that active measures will be resorted to with a view of suppressing the vice. A proposition has been introduced into the House, which, if adopted will entail a punishment on the lovers of the ardent who indulge in this much deplored failing. According to the proposed law a first offense will be punished lightly, a second by imprisonment and fine, and a subsequent offense will entail the forfeiture of electoral rights. The idea of depriving a man of the franchise because of indulgence in the "flowing bowl" is rather a novel way of punishing citizens who will have their beer. If they must have it, however, they must take the consequences with it.

MAIN ARRANGED BETWEEN GEORGIA AND SOUTH CAROLINA AND THE UNITED STATES. The New York Sun says a great main has been arranged between the well-known Southern sporting men, Major T. G. Bacon and Mr. J. Bowler. The former represents Georgia and South Carolina, and the latter backs the United States. Each party is to show thirty-one cocks, at weights ranging from four pounds and ten ounces to five pounds and three ounces, and fight according to Turner's rules, as construed by Dr. Gee, of Selma, Ala. Each battle is to be for $200 a side, and $5,000 the main. Major T. G. Bacon belongs to South Carolina, and Mr. J. Bowler is a resident of Georgia. The main is to be fought on the 10th and 11th of April, at New Orleans.

ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Rear Admiral Taylor has been ordered to the command of the South Atlantic fleet, relieving Tanman.

In the House, a bill paying Kansas $327,000 for war expenses passed.

A bill authorizing the Southern Claims Commission to appoint a Special Commission to take evidence was passed.

A large number of private bills, reported by the Commission on Claims, were passed.

The Conference Committee reported a bill in favor of giving St. Louis one-half million dollars for a cite, and one and three-quarter million dollars for public buildings, and the bill was passed.

The House then adjourned.

In the Senate, most of the day was used in a wrangle over precedence. Sherman wants tariff, Cole wants appropriations, Chandler wants commerce, while other Senators press comparatively private measures to precedence. Trumbull said it would be folly to pass the tariff bill, because the House would table it. The House had passed a bill repealing the duty on coal, etc. Sherman had offered on the general tariff bill, in the face of the Constitution, which says bills for revenue shall originate in both Houses.

The conference report giving St. Louis 2,500,000 passed. It goes to the President.

The salaries of District Judges are raised to $5,000, with a clause authorizing their transfer from one District to another as the exigencies of the service may require. This goes back to the House for concurrence.

The tariff bill was read. Scott, of Pennsylvania, gave notice of an amendment for free tea and coffee.

Senate adjourned.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, March 14.—The Nail Association has agreed to advance all grades of nails 25 cents per keg.

Dix presided over the full meeting of the Erie Directors. Everything appeared harmonious.

RHODE ISLAND.

PROVIDENCE, March 14.—The Republican State Convention fully indorse Grant and Colfax and favor their renomination. The present State officers were renominated.

VIRGINIA.

WARRENTON, March 14.—The Conference was in session until after 12 o'clock this morning.

Bishop Paine finished reading the appointments at midnight.

Resolutions complimentary to Bishop Paine, the presiding officers, and Rev. George G. Brook, late Sunday School Agent, were passed. Also, to the Orange, Alexandria and Manassas Railroad and to the connecting lines for return free tickets, and to the citizens of Warrenton for their generous and whole-souled hospitality in extending the freedom of the town to the entire delegation, 300 in number.

After a harmonious session of seven days the Conference adjourned at 12:40 A. M., to meet again in Baltimore the first Wednesday in March, 1873.

His Mexican friends retaliated by killing one of the party, upon which the Americans made a general raid on the Mexicans and killed four, a fifth one entrenched himself in an adabe house, which the attacking force blew up, and shot him also. TENNESSEE BEEF MARKET.—What is more desirable in a neighborhood than a good meat house for the supply of families. CONCORDIA ASSOCIATION.—The Concordias gave one of their delightful entertainments at their Hall last night. The audience was a brilliant one, and the performance very entertaining. Stage manager, D. Rosenberger, deserves much credit for the cast of the beautiful drama "Maid of Croissey." The characters were all well sustained. Miss J. H. Titlebaum was exceedingly effective in her impersonation of Theresa, Maid of Croissey. The same may be said of Miss Josie Liebermas, as Manasta. All that was requisite to be brought to bear in the respective roles of these young ladies was forthcoming, and the result was a dramatic triumph which surpassed the anticipations of their numerous friends. The Francis, a Tourist, of Mr. A. S. Labold, was a very decided success, and he swayed the audience with emotions which must have been exceedingly gratifying to him.

After the rendition of the drama, the soiree came off, and all the arts of entertainment were commended to the comfort of the guests. Laughter and mirth abounded; glowing beauty met the gaze on every side.

"Soft silks fair forms enhancing Prismatic hued swept by,
And looks of love entrancing
Graced many a lip and eye."

A thoroughly enjoyable and pleasant time it was, quite as much so, and as successful as any of the Concordia entertainments that have preceded it.

PENN BEDELL VS. WM. BONNELL, Jailor—Habeas for Bail—Alleged Offense, "Murder on the Body of M. W. Rasbury."—The above case having been heard before me on the 11th day of March, instant, and the court having required the applicant, Penn Bedell, to enter into a bond with good and sufficient security in the sum of ten thousand dollars for his personal appearance at the next Superior Court of Fulton county, to answer such indictment as may then and there be preferred against him; and being now satisfied that I passed my judgment upon a misapprehension of the testimony of W. H. Harrison as to the street upon which the difficulty occurred, it being improperly stated; and having now before me the affidavits of Samuel Hatfield and J. A. Tollison, to a great extent corroborating the testimony of said Harrison, given in before the court of inquiry, the said order and judgment of the court requiring the said Penn Bedell to give bail in the sum of $10,000 is hereby revoked, and it is now ordered, considered and adjudged by the court that the said Penn Bedell do give good and sufficient bond in the sum of six thousand dollars for his personal appearance at the next term of the Superior Court of Fulton county, to answer such indictment under the warrant charging him with the crime of murder on the body of M. W. Rasbury as may then and there be preferred against him. And is further ordered, upon such bond being given and approved, the applicant, Penn Bedell, be discharged from further imprisonment. This March 14, 1872. R. J. COWART, J. C. C. A.

MUSICAL SOIREE.—The musical entertainment at Degive's Opera House, last evening, given under the direction of Prof. R. W. Steel; Yes, for thee, times sad power, Scene and Aria, Somnambula, Bellini, Mrs. Snook; Quartette—Early Spring, Mendelsohn, Mrs. P. H. Snook, Miss Carrie Cowles, Messrs. Kennedy and Trowbridge.

Part Second—Slumber Soft—Quartette for male voices, Mochring, Messrs. Van Goldtsnoven, Kenedy, Hugh Angier and Trowbridge; Son—Farewell, Graham, E. Trowbridge, Esq.; Quartette—Good Night, (Martha) Flotow, Mrs. Snook, Miss Carrie Cowles, Messrs. Van Goldtsnoven and Hugh Angier.

All acquitted themselves handsomely, showing a degree of culture reflecting great credit on the "Beethoven Society."

LINGARD COMBINATION.—Wm. Horace Lingard, a genuine comedian and a first class character actor, with a superior company, including Miss Alice Dunning and Miss Dickie Lingard will begin an engagement at DeGive's on the 21st instant. In the production of fine old English comedies and rich burlesques, the reputation of the troupe is such as to require no additional word from us. The original "Captain Jinks"—Mr. Lingard—will appear in his wonderful character sketches, and sing a number of popular songs. He made a decided hit when he visited our city last season, and his re-appearance at DeGive's will be received with unbounded delight. Miss Alice Dunning is remembered for her beauty, as well as her cleverness as an actress. Miss Dickie Lingard, Mr. Evans, Davis Garrick, Mr. Matthews—in short, the entire company, are all good, and give pleasant, elegant and graceful performances.

THE LYDIA THOMPSON TROUPE.—Lydia and her blondes make their appearance at DeGive's next Monday night.

The Selma (Ala.) Times says:

Another large and fashionable audience was at the Opera House last evening to witness the second and last performance of the Queen of Burlesque and her beautiful blondes. The troupe having recovered from the fatiguing trip from Galveston, Texas, was in splendid trim, and each part of the piece was well played. The burlesque of "Lurline, or the Knight of the Naiads," was the cast, and it was rendered in a manner that decided to the satisfaction of all present that the Lydia Thompson combination, in their role of burlesque and comedy of the extravaganza description, stands pre-eminent on the American stage. Miss Lydia, as Sir Rupert, was indeed the reckless, hard-up young fellow in search of an heiress. Her acting was fine, and the character was played to perfection. Mr. Beckett, Mr. Edouin and Miss Weathersby were fine in the characters sustained by them. In fact, it may with truth be said, that such was the case in regard to all of the other characters.

MCDONOUGH STREET.—We noticed a short time since the rapid progress of improvement upon Pryor street. We are glad to note the same of McDonough street. In the last twelve months a large number of handsome residences have been erected. Among others is the elegant mansion of Colonel Z. D. Harrison, Clerk of the Supreme Court. The mansion is two-story, in fine style, with tastily arranged flower garden and handsome iron fence, built by Withers & Jones. This is one of the handsomest residences in Atlanta.

Colonel James M. Ball is refinishing his stylish mansion and making it "bran new" again.

V. Spalding, Esq., has changed his cottage house into a very commanding two-story dwelling, being now, perhaps, the largest house upon the street.

CITY COURT.—Jerry Thomas (col.) was found guilty of receiving stolen goods. Fine $25 and costs, or two months on the work gang.

George Rust was found guilty of simple larceny. Three months on the work gang.

Lucy Brooks was adjudged a vagrant. Sentence reserved.

The case against Harry Williams, assault and battery, nolle prosequied.

The case against Ransom Grimmett and Eliza Strong, simply larceny, was dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

The case against Jack Powers, larceny from the house, was dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

GENERAL R. E. LEE.

BY HELEN D'ESTE.

The following lines were written on the death of General Robert E. Lee:

A withering blight has fallen
O'er all the sunny Southern land,
A grief is clutching at her heart
With a cold relentless hand;
Her sky is covered with a cloud,
Her heart enveloped in a shroud,
Her leader is no more.

The marble King has set his seal
On the low of his noblest brave;
With frosty breath he's stilled the heart
And the flow of its crimson wave.
A dirge comes wailing from all parts—
Death bells are ringing in our hearts—
Our Lee is now no more.

The weary hands are folded now
Upon his patient breast;
His noble soul has risen its flight
To its eternal rest.
Angels will ever reach him more,
His boat has touched the other shore—
Lee is on the golden sands.

To save his country and her fame
He dared the sword and bullets smart—
'Twas her defeat and not his own
That broke his true and noble heart.
His banner trailing in the dust,
But his freed spirit o'er her must,
Will resurrect her yet.

Hold him in thine arms, O, Father!
Let our loved and honored Lee
Twixt our country and thy Kingdom
A carrier of blessings be.
With bitter tears we wash his grave,
But God has taken what he gave,
And yet will live again.

From the New Orleans Sunday Times.

A MUTE MESSENGER;

OR,

Story of a Handkerchief.

BY MAUDE.

Among the many transient guests that crowded one of the popular hotels of the Crescent City during the past fall, were two ladies who attracted universal attention. One was elderly, and evidently an aunt or other near relative of the other, a fair, frail girl with curling brown hair, and dark sad gray eyes.

One evening, just before nightfall, they were sitting together on the wide verandah, conversing in low tones, on a subject of great interest to the younger one at least, who was leaning her cheek against the iron railing, with her handkerchief folded between.

"How long has it been since you and Melville Graham had your little quarrel," asked the elder lady.

"It was not a little quarrel Aunty, but one big enough to continue all our lives, judging by his actions."

"How long since you saw him?" interrogated the other.

"Two years," was the brief response.

"Two years! Why the man is a cold-hearted flirt, and you are an idiot to care anything for him now. Take care, my dear! you will drop your handkerchief into the street. What did you quarrel about in the first place?"

The young girl picked up her handkerchief from the floor, and folding it into a tiny soft pillow, placed it again under her cheek and answered:

"It began about just nothing at all, or something equally foolish—a mistake. He called one day when I was out, and when I came in shortly afterwards, I found him lying on the sofa, and when I ran up to kiss him, his breath was strong with the smell of brandy. I thought, of course, that he had been drinking liquor, and was already two drunk to sit up, and with such a conviction said some very ugly words, which he seemed not to comprehend. At last I began to cry, and jerked myself out of the room, slamming the door in his face, for he got up and followed me."

"If he was a drinking man, I think you did well to rid yourself of the engagement," said Aunty, complacently winding a string of watch charms round her finger.

"Susie, my love, there goes that handkerchief again! It surely will go into the street next time. Do put it into your pocket."

"No danger, Auntie. I will be very careful," said Susie, this time crumpling it up and placing it under her cheek, as she continued to speak of her sorrow.

"But I was mistaken and acted like an idiot, as I really was. He was not feeling well that day, and when he came in looking so pale and wan, mother insisted on his drinking some brandy, and made him lie down there on the sofa to wait for me."

"Goodness gracious! what a girl! Why didn't you send for him and explain everything?" said Aunty, jumping up from her chair and pacing up and down.

"Mother did, but he had gone away, and we have never heard from or of him since," said Susie, also rising, forgetting all about the handkerchief, which fluttered downward and fell plump into the suddenly up-turned face of a gentleman who was passing along on the banquette. Susie peeped over just in time to see him turn toward the door of the hotel and mount the stairs leading to the parlor, evidently with the intention of restoring the handkerchief to its owner.

Dreading a lecture for her carelessness from prudish Aunt Hannah, Susie darted swiftly through the parlor and ran up to her room, leaving her aunt to receive the handkerchief and thank the stranger for restoring it. Oh, little girl with the mournful eyes! could you have known into whose face your mute little messenger fell, I wonder would you have run away so swiftly?

Holding the dainty fabric lightly in his hand, the gentleman passed through the parlor, out on the verandah, and approached portly Aunt Hannah, who was the only lady there.

"Permit me to restore you your handkerchief, madam," he said, proffering it to her.

Aunt Hannah drew her hands and herself back.

"You are mistaken, sir; I have my handkerchief," and as he still hesitated, her maidenly reserve took the alarm.

"Oh! I understand the tricks of you city fellows! You know very well that is not my handkerchief. Catch me dropping handkerchiefs over the railing to gentlemen in the street. Thank goodness, my niece has gone to her room, or you would have been impudent enough to have brought it to her, and she, like a little goose, would have been ready to make eyes at you for your gallantry. Go your way young man; you have failed this time."

"If he was a drinking man, I think you did well to rid yourself of the engagement," said Aunty, complacently winding a string of watch charms round her finger.

"Susie, my love, there goes that handkerchief again! It surely will go into the street next time. Do put it into your pocket."

"No danger, Auntie. I will be very careful," said Susie, this time crumpling it up and placing it under her cheek, as she continued to speak of her sorrow.

"But I was mistaken and acted like an idiot, as I really was. He was not feeling well that day, and when he came in looking so pale and wan, mother insisted on his drinking some brandy, and made him lie down there on the sofa to wait for me."

"Goodness gracious! what a girl! Why didn't you send for him and explain everything?" said Aunty, jumping up from her chair and pacing up and down.

"Mother did, but he had gone away, and we have never heard from or of him since," said Susie, also rising, forgetting all about the handkerchief, which fluttered downward and fell plump into the suddenly up-turned face of a gentleman who was passing along on the banquette. Susie peeped over just in time to see him turn toward the door of the hotel and mount the stairs leading to the parlor, evidently with the intention of restoring the handkerchief to its owner.

Dreading a lecture for her carelessness from prudish Aunt Hannah, Susie darted swiftly through the parlor and ran up to her room, leaving her aunt to receive the handkerchief and thank the stranger for restoring it. Oh, little girl with the mournful eyes! could you have known into whose face your mute little messenger fell, I wonder would you have run away so swiftly?

Holding the dainty fabric lightly in his hand, the gentleman passed through the parlor, out on the verandah, and approached portly Aunt Hannah, who was the only lady there.

"Permit me to restore you your handkerchief, madam," he said, proffering it to her.

Aunt Hannah drew her hands and herself back.

"You are mistaken, sir; I have my handkerchief," and as he still hesitated, her maidenly reserve took the alarm.

"Oh! I understand the tricks of you city fellows! You know very well that is not my handkerchief. Catch me dropping handkerchiefs over the railing to gentlemen in the street. Thank goodness, my niece has gone to her room, or you would have been impudent enough to have brought it to her, and she, like a little goose, would have been ready to make eyes at you for your gallantry. Go your way young man; you have failed this time."

Slowly returning the way he came, still holding the handkerchief in his hand, and with Hannah's voice ringing in his ears, our friend Melville Graham was like one who walked in his sleep.

Sweet memories came crowding round him; memories of a lovely girl with soft, tender eyes, who had once hung upon his arm, and made the earth a paradise for him. Something in the sweet face that he saw peeping over the railing reminded him of that other face, and something in the form he saw flitting up the stairs aroused all those sweet and bitter recollections from their hiding place.

He sought his room that night, and, sitting down, buried his face in his hands and gave himself up to the dreams of the past. He recalled that fatal day, when, ill and feeble, he had sought his darling's presence, and had been met with bitter taunts and accusations, instead of the loving caress he was wont to receive. How unpardonably hasty he had been himself, in rushing away without even demanding an explanation. So sorely had his heart been wounded, that for nearly two years he had rigorously excluded her from his thoughts, and he deemed his love all vanished; but to-night, as memory brought her before him in all her beautiful and loving innocence, he found that he loved her just as fondly and devotedly as when they clasped their hands in betrothal.

As he reflected he took up the little white messenger that had fluttered down into his face that evening and began turning it over and over, holding it up to the light, and finally his eyes rested on a name. He looked closer, and read in tiny letters, "Susie Bradford," the name of his lost love. That she had seen and recognized him and dropped the handkerchief down on purpose to attract his attention was his first thought, and manlike, his vanity was hugely flattered. His next impulse was to rush around to the hotel and seek her out that night and have the explanation that should have been made two years ago.

Acting on this impulse, he rushed round to the hotel and examined the register to make sure. There it was, the sweetest name in all the world to him. On making inquiries, to his great chagrin, he learned that she had retired for the night.

The next morning he called again, and after sending up his name and a pleading little note, he began tramping up and down the floor to conceal, if possible, his agitation. Aunt Hannah entered, and instantly recognized him as the "roaring lion" she had had an encounter with the evening before. She had related the affair to Susie, and took considerable credit to herself for her shrewdness in "bluffing" him off. Seating herself in a large arm-chair, in the middle of the room, she watched his movements with the eye of a lynx. She knew he was after mischief, probably he meant to carry off the silver ice pitcher. At any rate she would see what he was up to.

There was heard a light step tripping down the stairs, the rustling of a silken robe, and Susie shot through the door and into the open arms of the suspected man. Neither spoke, both hearts were too full for words. Aunt Hannah sat dumb with amazement. At last a look of intelligence darted across her kindly, dear, old face.

"Susie," she said, twitching at her niece's sleeve, "didn't you drop that handkerchief over the railing, after all."

"Yes, Aunty."

"Did you drop it on purpose?"

"No, dear Aunty, it was purely accidental."

"God sent that handkerchief as a messenger to bring you two together, and what He brings together, let not man put asunder. Young man! go right off and get the parson. There will be a wedding here to-day. No more misunderstanding, mind you."

And that same day, up in Aunt Hannah's sacred room, with only the necessary witnesses present, the twain were made one, and went on their way rejoicing.

The unconscious little handkerchief that had brought all this happiness about was laid away in a perfumed box, to be taken out again after awhile, it may be, and used as a shawl for "dolly."

So endeth my story.

The above and foregoing four pages of written matter contain a true and correct copy of the original of file in this office.

Given under my hand and the seal of office.

DAVID G. COTTING,
Secretary of State.

To all whom it may concern:

Notice is hereby given, that we, the undersigned joint committee, appointed by the President of the Senate and Speaker of the House of Representatives, under authority of the foregoing act of the General Assembly of Georgia, will begin our sittings in the city of Atlanta, State of Georgia, United States of America, on the first day of March, 1872, and will remain in session until the first day of May, 1872, for the purposes indicated in said act.

The attention of persons owning or holding the bonds of the State of Georgia, or the bonds of railroads indorsed by the State of Georgia, and who expect to present the same to the committee, is called to the first section of said act, as to the nature of the testimony required.

Persons desiring to communicate with the committee will address Thomas J. Simmons, Chairman, care of N. L. Angier, State Treasurer, Atlanta, Ga.

Signed at the Capitol, in the city of Atlanta, State of Georgia, United States of America, the 12th day of December, 1871.

LASSITUDE AND DEBILITY.—The relaxation of nervous energy which creates an indisposition to physical or mental effort, so strong as almost to amount to positive inability, and which we term lassitude, proceeds from a variety of causes. The principal of these are constitutional debility, heat of the atmosphere, coupled with humidity, climatic changes, and the physical prostration consequent upon a long illness. But whatever the cause, it must be perfectly clear that if the nervous system is unduly relaxed, something is required to brace it up. That something is Hostetter's Bitters, which is universally recognized as the most complete and speedy recuperant of the physical forces in existence. It has been so thoroughly and widely demonstrated as to be a matter of positive certainty and familiar knowledge, that the Bitters will not only rehabilitate the physique, when shattered and wasted by disease, but will also, if taken systematically, actually compensate the constitutionally feeble frame for its deficiency of strength, and by infusing new life into a weak system, endow it with little health and vigor which Nature has denied it. The bitters also enable the body to resist the enervating influences of heat, humidity, and changes from a temperate to a hot climate. It is on these accounts specially to be recommended to travelers and residents in the torrid zone, and persons subjected to abrupt transitions in temperature.

VITALIZE THE HAIR.—Why does the hair become harsh and dry—why does it fall out—why does it become gray? Simply because the life has gone out of it. The fibres draw sustenance from the scalp as the grass draws aliment from the soil, and when the supply of nutriment is cut off in either case the product withers and dies at the first symptoms of decay, therefore, the unfed or half-fed roots of the hair should be refreshed and reinforced with Lyon's Kathairon, the only preparation which will nourish the filaments and keep them in a vigorous condition after they have begun to suffer from a deficiency of their natural stimulant. As long as the Kathairon is faithfully used, with a proper degree of friction, morning and evening, so long will it be impossible for the hair to whiten or fall out from the scalp.

THIS is no intoxicating beverage or doctored liquor, to lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but a strictly medicinal preparation made from roots and herbs, suitable to any age or condition. As a family remedy, Simmons' Liver Regulator is equal to an entire medicine chest.

OLD PREJUDICES ARE DYING OUT. New facts are killing them. The idea that invalids weakened by disease can be relieved by prostrating them with destructive drugs, is no longer entertained except by monomaniacs. Ever since the introduction of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS it has been obvious that their regulating and invigorating properties are all-sufficient for the cure of chonic indigestion, rheumatism, constipation, diarrhœa, nervous affections, and malarious fevers, and they are now the standard remedy for these complaints in every section of the Union.
